Need to prevent farmers and ranchers from losing livestock. e. Concerned about the unintended consequences that lead to limits on controlling predators. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> a. The Commission does not have the authority to exempt some nongame species from the prohibition outlined in Section 2003 of Fish and Game Code. b. The Commission does not believe that regulations pursuant to Section 4152 of Fish and Game Code permit superseding the prohibition of inducements per Section 2003 of Fish and Game Code. c. The Commission has authority to interpret the statute and believes the legislative history of Section 2003 (effective in 1957) establishes a long-standing prohibition on prizes for all mammals. The legislature has carved out exemptions over time for specific types of contests, species, and limits on the value of prizes for activities widely deemed acceptable because they are regulated through bag limits, seasons, and methods of take, and enforced by the Department. The Commission believes that offering inducements for hunting contests of animals with no regulated take does not reflect good sportsmanship, or the likely intent of the legislature. Therefore, the Commission believes the proposed changes to sections 465 and 472 clarify the proper interpretation of FGC Section 2003(d), and, recognize and encourage sportsmanlike behavior. d. Commission does not believe that prohibiting inducements limits the ability of ranchers to save livestock. Section 4152 authorizes the take of nongame mammals found injuring crops or property at any time and in any manner.

			e. The proposed regulation does not establish new limits on predators, rather it clarifies the application of existing statute for nongame and furbearing mammals.

Requests proposed rule be amended to permit contests for rodents and other pests. b. Consider adopting regulations pursuant to 4152 to permit inducements for rodents. c. Legislative history, established in 1989, permitted inducements of up to $500 for all mammals. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> a. The Commission does not have the authority to exempt some nongame mammals, and not others. b. The Commission does not believe that regulations pursuant to Section 4152 of Fish and Game Code permit superseding the prohibition of inducements per Section 2003 of Fish and Game Code. c. The Commission has authority to interpret the statute and believes the legislative history of Section 2003 (effective in 1957) establishes a long-standing prohibition on prizes for all mammals. The legislature has carved out exemptions over time for specific types of contests, species, and limits on the value of prizes for activities widely deemed acceptable because they are regulated through bag limits, seasons, and methods of take, and enforced by the Department. The Commission believes that offering inducements for hunting contests of animals with no regulated take does not reflect good sportsmanship, or the likely intent of the legislature.
